

Conformity, Compromise, and Crisis in Worship

SABBATH AFTERNOON

Read for This Week's Study: Gen. 6:5, Jer. 17:5, Deut. 12:8, 13:18, 1 Kings 11:1–13, 1 Kings 18, Mal. 3:16–4:6.

Memory Text: “But solid food belongs to those who are of full age, that is, those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil” (Hebrews 5:14, NKJV).

In 1954, novelist William Golding wrote The Lord of the Flies, a fictional account of a group of English children stranded on a deserted island after a plane crash. Golding used this story as a modern parable about the inherent evil in human beings. What made the narrative so powerful was that he used children, supposedly the essence of innocence, to make his point about just how corrupt, evil, egotistical, and violent humanity is at heart.

Christians, of course, would say, So tell us something we don't know. Human evil and sinfulness are part and parcel of the Christian message. The Bible is unambiguous on that point. But while the idea that evil is bad is quite uncontroversial, what is not so uncontroversial is the question, “What is evil?” Not everyone agrees on that.

This week, as we continue to look at the question of worship, we are going to look at a certain kind of evil that has brought devastating consequences to God's people and to humanity in general. We can view what this evil did to ancient Israel, but we need to ask the important question about just how susceptible we are to it ourselves.

Study this week's lesson to prepare for Sabbath, August 20.*

In Different Eyes

Read the following texts. What is the one point that they all have in common? Why is it so important for us to always keep this in mind? Gen. 6:5, Jer. 17:5, John 2:25, Rom. 3:9–12. What kind of things exist in your culture that could cause you to forget this fundamental truth?

All through Scripture we are warned: the human heart is deceitful; people are corrupt; do not look to others; no one is immune from evil. With the exception, of course, of Jesus, who never sinned, few characters to whom the Bible pays much attention are pictured as morally unscathed.

One does not need Scripture, either, to see just how corrupt humanity is. History, newspapers, the daily news, indeed, even our homes, and at times our own hearts should suffice to show us the morally decrepit state of humanity. What should be scary for us to remember is that if a perfect being, as Lucifer originally was, could choose evil, even in the perfect environment of heaven, and if other perfect beings, as Adam and Eve were, could choose evil, even in the perfect environment of Eden—then what about ourselves? We are born with corrupt and fallen natures, and we carry those natures with us in a fallen and corrupted environment. No wonder that evil comes so easily, so naturally, to us. It is wired in our genes.

We have to be careful, however, in our understanding of what evil is. Some things are so manifestly evil, so manifestly bad, that anyone—whether a believer in God or not—would deem them to be evil. Evil, however, can be much more subtle. Things that the world or our culture and our society might view as fine, as normal, as just the way things are, could be precisely what the Bible condemns as wrong, sinful, even evil.

Contrast Deuteronomy 12:8 with Deuteronomy 13:18. What crucial difference is being made here? Why is this difference so important for us to understand? What are some things that your own society does not condemn that are clearly condemned by the Bible? More important, how much has society impacted you and the church in regard to these issues? That is, what things clearly condemned in Scripture might the church take too lightly, directly as a result of the influence of society? Bring your answer to class on Sabbath.

The Lesson in Brief

▶ Key Text: 1 Kings 18:21

▶ The Student Will:

Know: Recognize how subtly following what is right in our own eyes can compromise true worship, and how critical it is to be devoted to God’s careful and precise direction.

Feel: Sense the depravity of worship that rests on emotionality rather than on “Thus says the Lord.”

Do: Respond to the Elijah message that calls for repentance, obedience, and true worship.

▶ Learning Outline:

I. Know: The Slippery Slope of Compromise

A How did Solomon and Jeroboam start the people of Israel down the slope of compromise? What were the consequences of these compromises in the subsequent history of Israel?

B How did God, through Elijah’s message on Mount Carmel, help Israel to refocus on critical elements of true worship?

II. Feel: True Devotion Versus Emotional Display

A What were the hallmarks of emotional display exhibited by the priests of Baal on Mount Carmel?

B How did Elijah model true devotion?

C What other examples of persons displaying true emotion in worship can you find in the Scriptures? When have you experienced appropriate emotions in worship?

III. Do: Elijah’s Call

A Why is Elijah’s message so appropriate today?

B What is God calling you to do in response to this message?

C What is the call to the church of today?

▶ Summary: Compromise between our own inclinations and God’s clear direction can lead to false worship, but Elijah’s message calls us to repentance, obedience, and worship of the one true God.

The Art (and Evil) of Compromise

Politics, it has been said, is the art of compromise. The word art in this instance is very important, for compromise can be a very subtle, nuanced action on the part of the person doing it. A good politician is someone who can get the people to concede points, to compromise positions, and often not even realize that they are doing just that. In this context, then, there is no doubt that Satan is the best politician around.

All through the Bible, we find examples of this evil—the evil of compromise. Not that every compromise is evil, of course not. In a certain sense, life itself is a kind of compromise. Instead, compromise becomes another manifestation of human evil and corruption when those who should know better fall away from the truth that God has given to them.

For example . . .

Read 1 Kings 11:1–13. What happened here? How did this happen? What was it about Solomon that made his actions here so bad? How did this apostasy impact worship, faith, and the whole religious system of Israel? Also, and most important, what lessons can we draw for ourselves today from this episode and the whole question of compromise?

Perhaps the most revealing phrase in this block of texts is the statement that it was “when Solomon was old, that his wives turned away his heart after other gods” (1 Kings 11:4). In other words, it did not happen overnight. The faithful, dedicated, and godly man revealed in the Bible did not suddenly, out of nowhere, turn away from the Lord. Instead, the change happened bit by bit, over time; a little compromise here, a little there, each step taking him further and further from where he should have been until he was doing something that the Solomon of his earlier years no doubt would have been horrified to see.

Look, too, at what his compromises did to worship in Israel. They had a negative impact that would last for generations and beyond.

Every now and then you hear stories about people who left the Seventh-day Adventist Church years ago, severed ties with it completely, and then came back, only to be shocked by some of the changes that they saw in areas such as theology, standards, and worship. Though that might not be bad in every case, it might very well be bad in some. How can we know the difference?

Learning Cycle

► STEP 1—Motivate

Key Concept for Spiritual Growth: The call of God requires us to love Him with everything we possess—heart, soul, mind, and strength.

Just for Teachers: This week’s lesson explores the dangers of half-hearted worship. Whether one is led astray by the clamor for conformity to worldly standards or accepts a spirituality free of biblical imperatives, spiritual compromise destroys one’s connection with God. Share the following anecdote in your own words.

Opening Activity: This somewhat apocryphal story captures the notion of compromise. As the story is told, a family from New York purchased a large farm out West with the intention of raising cattle. They bought the land, set up the ranch, and started on their dream. Months later, some curious friends visited the family and asked the would-be cattleman if he planned to name the ranch.

“I wanted to name it the Bar-J,” he responded, “my wife favored Suzy-Q, one son liked the Flying-W, and the other wanted the Lazy-Y. So we’re calling it the Bar-J-Suzy-Q-Flying-W-Lazy-Y.”

“But where are all your cattle?” the friends asked.

“None survived the branding.”

Consider This: Discuss with your students some of the pros and cons of compromise in different areas of life, such as relationships, politics, or work. Ask your students to share a compromise that they later regretted.

► STEP 2—Explore

Just for Teachers: The goal of this Explore section is to examine the human tendency to stray from God’s dictates and think about how to remedy that tendency. At every level of one’s walk with God there will be a call to surrender attitudes, habits, norms, convictions, opinions, and so on. This is the narrow road that leads to life eternal. In this section explore this “pull and tug” of the Christian’s journey with your class.

Counterfeit Worship

In 1 Kings 11, Ahijah came to Jeroboam, Solomon’s servant, with a message that he would become king over ten of the tribes of Israel (vss. 26–31). But the prophet made it clear to Jeroboam that his success would depend on his faithfulness to God’s commandments (vss. 37, 38).

Unfortunately, Jeroboam listened only to what he wanted to hear and he forgot the conditions of success. He was all too ready to lead in the revolt (1 Kings 12:16–20), and almost immediately he took steps to prevent his subjects from returning to Jerusalem to worship.

Read 1 Kings 12:25–27. What does this tell us about the power and influence that worship can have on the human mind?

Look at the account of Jeroboam’s setting up a counterfeit religion that would eventually separate Israel from the worship of the true God in Jerusalem (1 Kings 12:25–33). Notice how this new worship resembled the worship of the true God and at the same time contradicted most of the clear counsel of Yahweh:

1. Offered sacrifices and ordained non-Levite priests (vss. 31–33)
2. Made calves of gold to worship (vs. 28)
3. Made Bethel a place of worship (vs. 29)
4. Made Dan a place of worship (vs. 29)
5. Instituted a rival feast to the Feast of Tabernacles (vs. 32)
6. Built shrines on high places (vs. 31)

Counterfeit money cannot deceive unless it looks like the real thing. In the same way, Jeroboam knew that his false worship must have many of the same elements of worship to which the people were accustomed, though he eventually declared, pointing to the golden calves, “ ‘Here are your gods, O Israel, which brought you up from the land of Egypt!’ ” (vs. 28, NKJV).

It is so easy from our perspective today to look back and wonder, How could they have fallen into such blatant apostasy? On the other hand, humans have an incredible capacity to deceive themselves (it is all part of our fallen and corrupted nature), and we deceive ourselves if we think that we are not just as vulnerable as humans were back then. Look at yourself, your lifestyle, your mode of worship. What might you be doing that is, in principle, not much different from what happened here? How willing are you to make changes, if need be?

Bible Commentary

I. God's Conditions (Review Deuteronomy 6:4–9 with your class.)

Monday's study captures the subtle nature of compromise, the nuanced acceptance of worldly norms, and the spiritual devastation that usually follows. God is keenly aware of the stealthy nature of evil, especially in those who profess His name. Perhaps this is why He rarely imparts a blessing without strict directions on how to "stay blessed."

As Israel prepared to enter the Promised Land, Moses urged them to love God with all their strength (Deut. 6:5). In Deuteronomy 6:18 he urges total obedience "that it may go well with you" (NIV). But Moses also made some other things clear to the Israelites:

- You will be blessed if you obey all (Deut. 6:24, 25).
- God will keep His covenant to you if you obey His commands (Deut. 7:12).
- You will be destroyed if you forget the God who delivered you and start worshipping other gods (Deut. 8:19).
- Your lands and livestock will be blessed if you obey God's commands (Deut. 11:13–15).

The list of God's conditional promises is long. God always clarifies His requirements, because He knows that sinful human beings are prone to forget them.

Consider This: Because we serve a God who jealously guards the sanctity of His dictates, why should we place the utmost priority on knowing what those dictates require of us? Acts 17:30 makes it clear that God does not hold us responsible for what we do not know. Nonetheless, knowing the requirements of God is essential, because it serves as a bulwark against compromise with, and conformity to, the world and its ways.

II. Knowing and Doing (Review 1 Kings 12:25–33 with your class.)

The curious case of Jeroboam reveals the challenges we sometimes face between knowing what is right and doing it. As the lesson makes clear, Jeroboam fancied himself a "worship guru," a spiritual innovator not bound by the rules of worship handed down to Israel by God (Exodus 25–31).

Elijah and the Prophets of Baal

Things went from bad to worse in the north, especially when it came to the question of worship under the reign of Ahab and Jezebel. It is against this background (see 1 Kings 17–19) that we come to the famous story of the confrontation between Elijah and the prophets of Baal. Here, we can see just how far compromise had taken them.

Read 1 Kings 18. Notice the difference between the “worship styles” of Elijah and these false prophets. What lessons might we take away that could be relevant for ourselves today and the whole question of worship?

It must have been quite a scene: these prophets of Baal wailing, leaping, crying (who knows what kind of music might have accompanied their ritual), prophesying, even cutting themselves and spilling their own blood as part of their worship of Baal. These were certainly hyped-up people, full of zeal and passion for their faith and their god, a zeal and passion that testified to the sincerity of their beliefs.

Today, too, some Christian worship services could remind one at times of something like this: a lot of emotion, a lot of hype, and a lot of noise. Though we want to avoid worship services that remind people of funerals, we also do not want worship services that remind them of priests of Baal at Mount Carmel either. Some seem to think that the more sounds they make, the louder the music, the more emotional excitement generated, the better the worship service. Yet, that is not what worship is about.

Perhaps one of the most important lessons from this account is that all worship must be focused on the true Lord, on the Creator. True worship needs to be grounded in the Word of God, pointing the worshiper to the Lord and His activity in history. In contrast to all the bedlam of the priests of Baal, Elijah prayed a simple prayer, “ ‘Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the Lord God’ ” (vs. 37). This was no Elijah show. It was about worshiping the true God in contrast to any and all false ones, regardless of the form they take.

Our worship services should always present worshipers with the question that Elijah asked Israel: “ ‘How long will you waver between two opinions? If the Lord is God, follow him; but if Baal is God, follow him’ ” (vs. 21, NIV). Our worship experience should force us to look inside our hearts and see where our true love and devotion are: on the Lord or on anything else.

Jeroboam's counterfeit worship was driven by something far more insidious than what might appear on the surface. Ellen G. White notes, "Jeroboam's greatest fear was that at some future time the hearts of his subjects might be won over by the ruler occupying the throne of David. He reasoned that if the ten tribes should be permitted to visit often the ancient seat of the Jewish monarchy, where the services of the temple were still conducted as in the years of Solomon's reign, many might feel inclined to renew their allegiance to the government centering at Jerusalem."—Prophets and Kings, p. 99.

Did you get that? Jeroboam's fear of abandonment, coupled with a lust for power and prestige, short-circuited his obedience to God. Often it's not the pressures from without that lead us to cast off God; it's the machinations within our hearts that find expression in dark compromises.

Notice the extent to which Jeroboam distorted the true worship of God. There is a sense here that once he began to compromise, there was no letting up. He led the ten tribes of Israel into an ever-deepening pit of idolatry that would not be eradicated for hundreds of years.

Consider This: If time permits, ask someone in the class to read Jeremiah 17:9. Ask the class to pick out some of the key words and phrases in this scripture. Notice that the prophet Jeremiah says that the unregenerated human heart is deceitful "above all things, and desperately wicked" (NKJV). It's not just wicked, but "desperately" wicked. Desperate is a strong characterization. It denotes something beyond hope, something suffering extreme need, or something involving extreme danger or possible disaster. What does this say about our natural condition and our ability to renew ourselves in our own power? What is our only hope for renewal?

► STEP 3—Apply

Just for Teachers: Conformity and compromise with the world often lead to crisis. Distribute 3 by 5 index cards and pencils to your class members. List the following Bible characters and ask the class to identify the area of compromise or conformity in each life and how it affected each character's worship of God.

- Cain
- Samson
- Jezebel
- Jacob
- Eli

The Elijah Message

“Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not” (Mal. 3:18).

For all the drama, Elijah’s confrontation with the 150 prophets on Mount Carmel boiled down to one question for the people gathered there with them: “‘How long will you waver between two opinions? If the Lord is God, follow him; but if Baal is God, follow him’ ” (1 Kings 18:21, NIV). However specific the context was, the question is one that each individual must answer for herself or himself: Do we worship and follow the true God or not? We might be able to “waver between two opinions” for only so long, but sooner or later we all come down on one side or another.

At the end of time, when the great controversy is over, all humanity will have been forever divided into one of two classes: “between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not” (Mal. 3:18). As Jesus so bluntly and clearly said: “ ‘He that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth’ ” (Luke 11:23). How much plainer could He be?

With the story of Elijah on Mount Carmel in the background, read Malachi 3:16–4:6. What is the Lord telling us here? How do we understand this “Elijah message” in the context of last-day events and the whole question of worship? See Rev. 14:7–12.

Just as John the Baptist, whom Jesus referred to as “Elijah” (Matt. 17:11–13), had a message of reformation, repentance, and obedience, Malachi makes it clear (Mal. 4:1, 5) that “Elijah” will again come just before the end of sin and evil. The book of Revelation proclaims to the last generation a message of warning, a call to obedience, and a call to worship the Creator God. As with Elijah on Carmel, people will in a very dramatic way have to make the most important choice of their lives, a choice that is filled with truly eternal consequences. The good news is that, even before these final events unfold, we can make daily choices that will greatly prepare us to be on the Lord’s side when the climactic battle between good and evil unfolds among the nations.

Think about the daily choices you’ve made (perhaps in the past few days), even regarding the smallest of things (see Luke 16:10). Judging by those choices (and the compromises that might be manifest in those choices), which of the two sides are you choosing? Dwell on the implications of your answer.

- Judas
- David
- Achan

Consider This: In what ways do we sometimes compromise our standards in the same areas? What are the results?

Thought Questions:

- 1 According to Jeremiah 17:9, we humans have heart trouble of the most dire sort. How can we keep from compromising God’s standards when we have a heart and nature that sabotages us from within?
- 2 Psalm 119:9 explains how to keep one’s way pure “by taking heed according to Your word” (NKJV). Verse 11 enlarges on this theme. The Word hidden in one’s heart helps to prevent sin from taking root. If God’s Word is powerful enough to keep our way pure and free of dangerous compromises and to prevent us from falling, why do we continue to sin when we know what is right?

Application Questions:

- 1 How does your personal walk with God impact your corporate worship of God? Do you come in search of something from God, or do you enter God’s presence with something to give to God? Discuss.
- 2 This week’s lesson touched on the entertainment ethic prevalent in some worship services today. What can you do to help your church avoid the dangers of “seeker-dominated” worship styles?

► STEP 4—Create

Just for Teachers: Ask your students to turn over their 3 by 5 index cards and write down one problem area of their lives in which they are not following God’s commands completely. (Alternately, you can ask them just to think about the area, without disclosing what it is.) After each member is finished, allow a minute for silent prayer. Invite each class member to ask God for the strength to yield this area of his or her life to God. Close with a prayer of thanksgiving.

“The apostasy prevailing today is similar to that which in the prophet’s day overspread Israel.”—Ellen G. White, Prophets and Kings, p. 170.

“God has many thousands [in this age] who have not bowed the knee to Baal . . . [and] many who have been worshiping Baal ignorantly, but with whom the Spirit of God is still striving.”—Page 171.

A. W. Tozer, a well-known preacher of the twentieth century (he died in 1963), often preached against the worship of the “god of entertainment,” suggesting that no matter how hard they try, churches cannot compete with the world’s idea of entertainment. It is the cross of Jesus Christ, says Tozer, not entertainment, that will win souls to Christ. See A. W. Tozer, Tozer On Worship and Entertainment, compiled by James L. Snyder (Camp Hill, Penn.: Wing Spread Publishers, 1997), pp. 108, 109.

Discussion Questions:

- ❶ In class discuss your answer to Sunday’s question. How much has your society impacted the church’s views on the moral issues of the day?
- ❷ The descriptions of Baal worship hint that it was highly entertaining, which could help explain its popularity. How can we restore the sense of awe and reverence of God in our worship, rather than encourage expectations of being entertained?
- ❸ How has the Seventh-day Adventist Church changed in the past twenty years? In your opinion, in what ways has it changed for the better, and in what ways not? If time should last, what do you think the Seventh-day Adventist Church will be like in twenty years? Try to imagine what your local church’s worship service will be like.
- ❹ Think about how drastically the nation of Israel fell into apostasy. Again, none of this happened overnight. The devil, if nothing else, is patient. How can we protect ourselves individually, and the church as a whole, from slowly but surely going the same way as Israel?
